Abstract

A system, comprising a receiving module to receive a request to load a component, a stack to record the request and a loader to fulfill the request, wherein when the request has been fulfilled the request is removed from the stack and when the loading of the component is unsuccessful, contents of the stack are made available to a user to indicate the unsuccessfully loaded component.